

Army Trail puts spotlight on reading

At Army Trail School, this week was filled with reading fun. On Tuesday evening, families visited the school for the Spotlight on Reading, an event designed to help promote reading throughout the summertime. Today, students came to school in their pajamas and were able to spend some time for a special Spotlight on Reading time. Lights in the gym were turned off and all of the students and staff settled in to read books by flashlight. The flashlights were donated to the students by Home Depot. Also, librarian Diane Lewandowski arranged for guest readers from the District's Administration Center to come and read to classes in the library.

Dr. Lisa Black Gomez, Director of ELL and Grant Services for District 4, reads to a class of 1st graders.
