A magical beanstalk?

In May, 2010, students in Rebecca Velez's kindergarten class planted bean seeds to study how a seed grows into a plant. The kindergarteners took their little sprouting plants home in June and were told to care for them over summer just as they had learned in school. Payton Palmer, now in first grade, shows off her "magic" beanstalk plant, which has grown over 12-feet tall. Could there be a giant living at the top?
