Fullerton 2nd graders mourn classmate

Students in Kelly Lisk's 2nd grade class at Fullerton School came back to school this week after the long Thanksgiving break and began dealing with the loss of their classmate, Tommy Mangiantini, who died recently. One of the activities in which students participated was a balloon launch, in which they wrote messages or drew pictures, attached them to balloons and released them as a way to remember Tommy and begin the healing process for students and staff members.
