

News from Room 25

December, 2011

Senior Citizens' Day:

Senior Citizens' Day is a very special day for Fullerton. Your child will be singing selected songs for the many seniors who love to come and hear Fullerton students share their music.

Science:

We are beginning the study of the Earth in the past. We will be exploring the world of the dinosaurs. We will discover how we know about animals of the past from fossils and how the world of the dinosaurs changed to cause extinction.

Math:

We recently ended our unit on time. Please continue to review the concepts related to time so that your child does not forget. We are now concentrating on graphs and charts and how we can interpret data from them.

Social Studies:

We are still working on our Unit 2--Our Earth. This unit introduces children to the concept of caring for Earth's natural resources—its land, water, air and plants, and explores different ways children can conserve and protect them.

Literacy:

We are beginning to learn cursive letters! The students are very excited about this. Please help them by not going ahead and teaching them letters at home. Please review the letters and the stroke names with the information that I sent home in the folder on Open House night. This will help the students reinforce what they have been taught in class.

I hope you and your family will enjoy the Winter Break and that you will make many wonderful memories together. See you in January!
