

Welcome to the second trimester. The first one flew by, as I'm sure the year will continue to do. I'm looking forward to seeing you all at conferences to discuss your child's progress.

The students will continue to be very busy second trimester. In math, we will be starting graphing next week, which will be a nice change from division. We are stepping into the Revolutionary War in social studies, which the students usually find very exciting. In science, we will be studying mixtures and solutions, and we are now working on the circulatory system. We will continue reading from our reading book as well as other books from our library and Scholastic resource. I am reading What Would Joey Pigza Do? This is the third book in the series by Jack Gantos. The students really enjoy this series and look forward to our daily reading.

NEWS FROM ROOM 15

As most of you know, we had an observer here, "Mr. Contra" from Lewis University. His last day at Wesley was on November 16th. He will go on to another school to student teach. We were happy to have had him with us for the beginning of this year and wish him well in the future. Before we know it, Thanksgiving week will be here, then Christmas, and then we'll be celebrating a brand new year!

I hope the coming months are joyous for all of you. Please remember I am available most every morning and after school. Please feel free to contact me with any questions or concerns. My telephone number is (630) 628-4075.

Please leave a message, and I will return your call as soon as possible. You can also contact me via email at econstantopoulos@asd4.org.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Constantopoulos
